JUST ANOTHER UNHAPPY JOKE

In a city each day we receive thousands of mail impressions: on the faces of hundreds of people, on a street or a building or an industry that we haven't seen before. It is likely that a smiling countenance is one that after a time it is only the smiling which will register in memory or cause an ink of satisfaction.

This probably explains how a word like smile becomes a key, basic advertising word and why window displays jump up and down desperately to attract the attention. Words like fun, new, glad, and modern become the attraction objectives for against hard, dim, normal, and old. When they are used in business a big new and glad modern.

Of course there are innumerable acceptable words because they are associated with progress - even though it isn't always so and hopelessness - and with increased material wealth - even though it isn't always so and quality. But I wonder how much an atmosphere of success, happiness, and goodness contributes to, or on the other hand reflects, success. America was first won by the individual. E. Durbin and substituted on by life on both fields. He used to describe the condition which arises in modern society when people lose their beliefs or are bewildered by competing beliefs. To quote Durbin, the individual finds society meaningless and follows "a restless nervousness, a gloomy self-development, an art of living which has no criterion of value and in which happiness lies always in the future."

With this in a person feels increasingly "alone, isolated, and hostile, experiencing acute anguish."

America in a serious social condition not only because of its actual destructiveness - atomic warheads - but also because of the equally insidious urge it can ignore when a society attempts to free itself of it. Atomic makes totalitarianism and heavy militarism attractive. Totalitarianism and authoritarianism can create a feeling of security, give a feeling of identification and meaning which these people of modern America is lost, for instance, during wartime when a common danger and highly organized life give many people a sense of belonging and calm display.

Christianity in his book The Structure of Fantasy describes the conflict between the growth of freedom and the growth of science.

America is high in scientific where the individual has the responsibility of deciding what is right and what is wrong, of planning his own life, and where there is no church to guide him morally and no corporate political party to order his existence, or to correct belief or stimulate set of values. They argue that people will have to accept a degree of freedom if they wish such freedom.

It is interesting that in speaking on the recent increasing use of advertising of another word - village. We have a village of House Creek, beauty villages, shopping villages, and even little villages. In the appeal of this word related to our feelings of human and isolation? Is it a switch away from words like big, new, and great because they evoke some way psychologically cold and repellent? Village has the connotation connotations such as small, quiet, beautiful, and neighborly. A village can be planned as a place where everyone is known and where certain forms of behavior are accepted.

Commercial villages is a highly one then perhaps part number of the and illusions, usually the imagination of our city life. But perhaps we are now adjusted to living a pseudo-life and the idea of a "city of villages" will end into our subconscious mind with the other connotations, illusions and illusions to be, paradoxically, just another unhappy joke our society has had on us.

The Australian Journalists' Association has established a code of ethics which all members are pledged to observe. Included in the code are the following provisions: To report and interpret the news with accuracy, honesty, and to suppress sensationalism and not to distort the facts by omission or words of unproven authority, to respect all confidence in all circumstances; never to accept any form of bribe, nor to receive personal payment or influence a source of information; to use only honest methods to obtain news, pictures and documents; to observe at all times the dignity of the profession, and always to maintain, through personal conduct, full public confidence in the integrity and dignity of the journalistic calling.

Three survivors of the Voyager tragedy raised their glasses in a Sydney hotel last night and drank a toast "to departed shipmates"—the 52 officers and men who died on the night of February 10 last year.

Albie Swanson, Peter Howie, 23, tall, blonde and tanned, said last night "the moment I was about to down a can of grog and the next the world blew up. Lights out, yells, things falling everywhere."

Said Leonard Newman, Richard Reynolds, 36, an official Navy photographer who had been in the Voyager only five days:

"I remember staying under the stern and seeing the waves cut off a great and thinking what a great picture it would have made, and I would have given my right arm for my camera."

They gripped at the memory of another shipmate whose reality overcame his fear — he ran back into the disaster-struck aftermath of the disaster or to get on a pair of shorts before jumping into the sea.

But they talked quietly of another shipmate who couldn't swim, and who drowned despite the efforts of two others to save him.

Said Albie Swanson, 23, who was to be a mess in the forward part of the ship. "I swam like hell away from the ship and then I heard someone yell that the Melbourne was sinking too. I thought we were really in trouble then."

THE SUNSHINE STATE OF AUSTRALIA

GO NORTH YOUNG MAN

Ever wish you'd been to Chicago in the 30's? Are you envious when mum n' dad tell tales of speakeasies, bootleggers, Al Capone and the massacre on St. Valentine's Day? Well, its not too late to enjoy your own slice of vice - come to Queensland. Despite our State-wide Prohibition of everything from brothels to books (we even have our own vicious censorship board), we're so dirty and corrupt that even the local press has been stunned into reconciliation. Read below to wet your appetite, then pack your bags for the holiday you'll never come back from . . .

If you're a worker, you'll strike it rich in sunny Queensland. So much so, that the indigenous laborers are loathe to share the spoils and therefore discourage the 'pink 'n shovel' workers.

Last December, for instance, the powerful Queensland Trades and Labour Council launched an extensive publicity campaign in Britain to try to stop skilled workers migrating to Queensland. (See The Australian, 8/12/60).

They sent a circular to all metal and building trade unions in England. The circular said that incoming migrants should not be misled by glowing reports from Government sources and told them that Queensland is still a low wage State.

The circular further stated that the Government, employers and the Industrial Commission use "savage and vicious" penal provisions. The British Union received the circular in early December and were asked to give it wide publicity. A supplementary advertising campaign for the British Press has also been organized by the Queensland Council.

This move outraged the Queensland Government which had previously announced a joint Industry-Government overseas mission to recruit British workers. This four man mission will spend 10 weeks in England, Scotland and Ireland seeking metal and electrical tradesmen.

The Queensland Premier, Mr. Nicklin told Parliament: "I have come across some pretty scurrilous things in my life, but this reaches the lowest level of infamous defamation of the State, its Government and its people, that I have ever encountered."

A TYPICAL QUEENSLAND HOUSEWIFE

"Barham's" move follows the transfer last week of the Chief of the C.I.B., Inspector T. Donovan, to take charge of the Ipswich district.

Police throughout Barham today claimed that documented recent transfers had weakened police morale.

In another police development on Monday, the Police Commissioner, Mr. F. Bucher, ordered the withdrawal of all police personnel associated with the Police Welfare Club.

"Today it was revealed that Mr. Bucher had ordered a departmental inquiry into the disappearance of police under bonds from the Valley police station.

"This followed a report that Valley members of the union passed the list to make up more than £100 which had been misappropriated by a policeman."

THE UNTOUCHABLES

Queensland Police made headlines last year during a Royal Commission into law and games at the Brisbane National Hotel. The police were officially exonerated. However, there has recently been a strange movement at the Station. Sergeant D. Buchanan, one of Barham's leading detectives and key witness in the National scandal, was mysteriously transferred from C.I.B. headquarters to a uniformed police branch.

The Sydney Morning Herald (30/1/60) reports further that:

THE AUSTRALIAN

By the allegations, Mrs. Fels must be that Mr. Egerton was sent to retain his office and should be removed from it.

Even Queensland's judges have a special way about them.

A leading member of the local judiciary was recently revealed as a lawbreaker.

He was Sir William Payne, president of the Queensland Land Court, who died two years ago, leaving $187,322.

In the latest report of the Taxation Commissioner it was revealed that between 1951-52 and 1960-62 his income was underdeclared by $2674.

Mr. Aileen (Elizabeth) Hazzard, November 1964. "I was intrigued the other day to learn that a very prominent member of the Land Court, lately deceased, left an estate of $187,000 and dodged the Taxation Department to the extent of about $2,000.

"I think I am right in assuming all that money was not acquired by that man purely and simply as a result of the lawful emoluments that he received as a member of the Land Court or of the Land Administration Commission or whatever position he held."

As on so many matters that one would assume to interest the locals the Brisbane Press maintained remarkably quiet about those revelations.

MYSTERY RESIGNATIONS

Although Queensland's new Television station (Channel 9) is not yet operating it has, meanwhile, been providing the public with some air-splitting entertainment.

When 40 per cent of the shares of United Telecasters changed hands on the first day of sale last April, everyone had fun

The President of the Queensland Trades and Labour Council is Mr J. Egerton. The following is a recent speech by Mr Aiken, made in the Queensland Parliament, November 30, 1964

"It is not so very long ago that Mr Egerton was running around showing a big bundle of 'tens' which he claimed contained $4,000. He said he won that $4,000 at the races. In my honest and considered opinion, he did not win that money at the races. In my honest and considered opinion, it was given to him to pass on to other trade union officials at the Trades Hall in order that industrial peace might be bought at certain establishments in Brisbane. The practice of handing over money to trade union officials in order that the employees - usually a big industrial combine or concern - can buy industrial peace is not new in Australia or overseas. It is unfortunately true in the trade union movement in Queensland today that industrial peace can be bought as long as the money is paid to the right persons and distributed to the right people.

When the big Mt Isa strike occurred some years ago, Mr Egerton went off to the Karumba gentlemen's hunting lodge, ostensibly to catch fish for the starving strikers at Mt Isa. He did not catch any fish but he did chase a few pink elephants. Of course, the Karumba gentlemen's hunting lodge is owned and controlled by millionaire Ring Ansett, who would say, in a very fitting recreational body for Mr Egerton.

To see Mr. Egerton in the full flush of the power and glory one does not have to go to the Trades Hall, one does not have to listen to him at the Trade Union meeting charges of greed and corruption against Members of Parliament one has only to go down to the Virginia Golf Club or Royal Queensland to see him in the apple, his yellow pallor and phlegm associated with the accepted wealthy snobs of Brisbane."

playing 'who dunnit'. After an investigation, the culprit was revealed as Ring Ansett. Now Ring has 'dunnit' again.

Recently, three of the original eight Queensland directors of United Telecasters suddenly resigned and were replaced by Ansett men.

The nine-member board now includes five nominees of Ansett Transport Industries, giving Ring complete control.

(Although Ansett had originally conspired with United Telecasters in seeking a Queensland licence, he was refused because of his interests in other States.)

When the chairman of the board announced the reshuffle, he stated that Ansett Transport Industries supported the policy of "promoting and operating the station to a definite Queensland image."

We hope the station's image is, in fact, cleaner than both Queensland's and Mr. Ansett's.

Tourist TOWNSVILLE

Windy or sunnier, lovely Townsville always enjoys perfect weather. It is a typical Queensland boom town. It is a boom town for every three years and then comes to life on the fourth, the year preceding each Olympic Games, when the Australian Commonwealth Swimming Association moves in. At such times it becomes a veritable Mecca for swimmers of the world-be, could-be and should-like-to-get-into-kind-of-them variety.

Townsville is rightly renowned for its beautiful Harbour and famous Overseas Terminal. Amongst the VIP's to use the Terminal's facilities in '64 were: William Wallis, who went there by mistake (he was coming for Sydney) and Belgian ecologist Selva, who made a mistake in going there (he was thrown into Townsville's equally famous lock-up for possessing that Northern Queensland, possum bird.

THE IDEALIST

I believe in 'Free Expression' to educate those less fortunate who have been DEPRIVED of the benefits of a Liberal Education. I'm an IDEALIST... and this is MY ideal. This is MY ~~cause~~ my motivation.

I publish a number of magazines for MEN, STAG GROOM, The Nook Manual, 'LUST' etc. Despite the names, these are high class cultural magazines... using SEX as a front.

a front, covering up the culture, well aware of the anti-intellectualism rife in this country. The very anti-intellectualism that makes Australia (with Ireland of course) the LARGEST STAG of the Educated world. I, persecuted, persecuted and thoroughly disenchanted by a society of reactionary FITS, unless I slip the articles by such BRILLIANT and controversial authors as the Doctor of Wonders, E. L. Pearce, Harold MacMillan, Phyllis Stein, John Howard Reid, William Shakespeare, Paul Magdaleno, (I want to go on forever), between blue jokes, bitches, message ads and nudos. I want to, (I must, it is my motivation) bring the shining light of great intellect to the People... But the sacrifices are too to make for idealism... Do YOU KNOW that the last issue of 'Martin Luther's Choice' would have been EXAMINED if I hadn't hidden that Hemingway short story between 'Backings at Sydney Strip Tease' and a 12-page colour 'PELOUT OF SCREW' the MONTH ending 1975.

The matter to be assessed is historical perspective is this. During the Attorney-Generalship of H. V. Ewart, 1, an editor and part-proprietor of a monthly newspaper, The Pamblico, and president of a bona fide political organisation (The Australia First Movement) was imprisoned for three-and-a-half years by ministerial edict under the National Security Act and Regulations.

On the face of it, this was a gross abuse of freedom of the Press and freedom of assembly. I had committed no offence whatever. At any rate, I was never charged before any magistrate with any offence. No indictment was filed against me. I had no trial before judge and jury. There was no case for me to answer. I was demonstrably not guilty in any way of any offence in the criminal or civil code. I was not malicious, either in words or deeds.

I was simply locked up, and kept locked up for three-and-a-half years, in "preventive detention," on no demonstrable grounds of military necessity, but merely by ministerial order. The case was put on me of proving myself innocent of charges of which I was not informed.

The instruments of my incarceration were secret denunciations, false accusations made under Parliamentary privilege, oppression, trial by unimpartial conduct in my absence, and the employment of government agents-provocateurs, pimps, paid informers, and professional character-assassins—all this in an attempt to justify, in post facto, the governmental suppression of a newspaper and a political organisation which was enjoining the movement.

The pseudo-political technique employed was that of the "app-trial" under the Soviet Communist system of dictatorship of which H. V. Evatt was then, and still is, an ardent apologist. By the Australian National Security Act of 1939 was not originated in Russia. It was adopted, almost unaltered, from a similar Act in Britain. In Australian history, it was a throwback to the doctrinal methods of Governor Darling's day in New South Wales.

In company with twenty other Australians of whom was of course also one woman, birth or ancestry, but all of them subjects by birth, and all except one (an Englishman) of Australian birth, I had the relatively uneventful experience—and I am an Australian of the second generation of the Australian-bom—of being awarded in my native land, and in my father's native land, as crudely as the Tasmanian Marjory, the Slovenian Marjory, and the thousands of Irish marjory of the worst period of the Imperial Censiter System in Australia, perhaps more crudely so, for we were not even convinced, as the earliest-day marjory were, that merely "Gaiety."

On the twenty-one dayline, sixteen were members of New South Wales and one of Victoria—all, more or less, connected with The Fall and The Australia First Movement. The other five, residents of Western Australia, had nothing whatever to do with The Fall or the Australia First Movement. They were induced by a government agent-provocateur to take some part in the formation of a bogus "Australia-First" Movement, of which we, in Sydney, knew nothing.

That is the clue to the whole sly or deplorable or sinister business. Seven men in Sydney, and four men in Melbourne, were arrested and detained leaves, of the members of a prominent and powerful Australian family, who were severely laid off because of their position on coal. The last in the family line, the son of the first, was a member of the National Service Act, and there were thus some old unemployment, which sufficiently explained their having been laid off in such a generalised sense, was very very accurate.

But their cause the friends of Australia. The two who were found to be the most prominent in the family were nevertheless assumed for the duration of the war. The two sons were found "Glasgow" after some time, and the two daughters were also assumed for the duration of the war. The movement in the Eastern States, including myself, who were very strongly in the air at that time, were very much in the air at that time. The friends of the war were released after six months' detention, but after six months, and I was held for three and a half.

I am not authorized to speak here on behalf of the entire society in this nomination, but it should be evident that mine was the winning case. My view, then, is that the whole problem must stand in history as the blackest smudge on H. V. Evans' political and ethical record.

The case began with questions asked in the Federal Parliament by Matt Fiddler, MHR, and in the New South Wales Parliament by Abraham Lincoln, MLC, demanding the suppression of the Australia-Fire Movement as an illegally 'anti-Semitic' or 'Fascist' or 'Nazi' organisation. This was answered by a resolution passed by the then Government-controlled Sydney Trades and Labour Council, demanding the suppression of the movement.

Even without Fulbright's question (November, 1941) promising an investigation, in the stage of information made, in January, 1941, to the SOG Eastern Command (General [George] Lee) my movement. The SOG refused my use, that information.

It was after this that the agent-investigator was put to work in Western Australia, to organize a big game and fish museum there, with income supplemental to his.

On Feb. 23, 1942, Evans sent an order to Fisher Chief Marlin, in Seattle, to publish a statement of the American Farm Movement which we had called in press for "an inquiry into personal responsibility for the inadequate defense of England," and for the recall of the A.F.F. from the Pacific Coast to defend American Farm."

On 16th March, a telegram was sent to Fort by Lieutenant Colonel Joubert (Deputy-Director of Security, F.A.) to all Commands (including Joint Command, with H.Q. at Sydney) announcing the discovery in W.A.

of the "plot" of the (legend) Scout's in East Mountain.

The eleven members of committee of the anti-fascist "Australian Free Movement in Exile" were opposed to the meeting of DWA Branch. They were that H. V. Hunt had left Australia to go to the U.S.A., where he remained for six months. That was how he attempted to cover his tracks, and to put responsibility for the coup on the Acting Attorney-General (John Buxley), who was not a lawyer, and acted in Parliament that he "knew nothing" of the case.

[illegible]

When appointing the Commissioner, I was made an unpolished first impression that seriously prejudiced the inquiry. The Commissioner's findings, to ignore the common men of Sydney, as it is the right of them (including myself) had been "possibly obtained" and rights "unjustifiably denied." In Parliament, First Deputy stated that the case had been investigated by "a direct

As for me, I have nothing to apologize for, or to regret. My writings in The Fulcrum for 3½ years are unscathed. That was a witness to independent journalism, a step toward true collaboration with American businessmen—the idea that something could be achieved here.

Marxism is still proving nothing was perceived, but I don't want to go to Paris the present generation, at their highest, were the 'best' generation—identified with a war that dissolved the British Empire, spread Communist domination over half Europe and half Asia, and weakened the progress of the whole east. They were lost sons of the Revolution, and I had no part in that.

F is for fun... Between 1950-52, a bored weatherman, stationed north of Hudson Bay, left a monument that neither government nor time can eradicate. Many white men have felt compelled to pile stones on stones to leave some mark in the arctic wastes, but he was the first to harness technology to this end. Using a bulldozer abandoned by the Air Force, he spent two years and great effort pushing boulders into a single word.

CONTELLA
On New Year's Eve we have a bonfire. It's an open and warm one. All these dirty little double-breasted overcoats vibrant in the gray shrouded day's beams and the rain.

 Had at all. We just thought you'd like to have this. My friend is in the office of our new old Puddinghouse House that we bought from you for twelve like we had before.

Tasteful? Quietly

Headout to the Toggery for our gear winter collection. Coolest woolies, finest shetlands, suzzling suedes - all worn from the drawing board. Catch on to our range and be ready for the hizzards.

And if you're going outside and may be some time then grab a sled and make it across the crevasse to the Toggery at Double Bay.

You'll really warm to the west

Some Valentines (Feb 14)

To Ray

from Elizabeth

For you this Valentine I've penned,
As thru court corridors I wend
They say our love was just a flash
And that it only came to Ash!
But my heart knows and Heaven senses
That I'm your own emanensis.

To Sir Alec

from Nicki

To one who's topped, from another
A billet-doux from your Big Brother
I trust, comrade, your exile's cheerier
Than these sunless salt wastes of Siberia
Where - if I see a flower bloom
My heart doth ache for Home, sweet Home

To Sir Robert

from Arthur

I will love you till I die,
But why has life passed me by?

To Jackie

from Jack

Rubies are red
Ravage is sweet
Went off my head
Gave Oswald the heat
Critics are rife
(Prob'ly get life)
Juries are pink
Warren's a sink
Of you I think
In Dallas sink.

NEW GUINEA

A lady we know was elected,
By fierce Kukakuku selected.
They all came to greet her,
Decided to eat her,
And soon had that lady dissected

RUSSIA

Said Sushin to Khrush "I accuse
You of soft ideological views,
Capitalist thinking
And far too much drinking,
And hogging the overseas crew"

Grant Nichol

To darlings Hilton, Wilding and Fisher

from Liz

I loved you,
Then,
I loved you not
But
Do not think that I've forgot
Your passion in our marriage cot (s)
